Japan Society of Sarcoidosis and other Granulomatous Disorders

SPONSORSHIP PROSPECTUS

Theme of WASOG/JSSOG 2019

Theme

Comprehensive Understanding beyond Organs in Granulomatous and Fibrotic Diseases

Conference Objectives

In recent years the trend of international cooperation is remarkable, WASOG has developed annual meeting for other Interstitial Lung Diseases (ILDs) that need to distinguish from Sarcoidosis. It is not an exaggeration to say that organs that cause Sarcoidosis that has yet to be elucidated is not limited to the respiratory system, there are no organs such as skin, nerve, heart, bone, kidney, etc. to avoid. The aging and fibrosis of each organ is also a common topic of aging society.

On the other hand, diseases characterized by granulomas are not limited to Sarcoidosis, but include diseases of unknown origin such as infectious disease condition, inflammatory bowel disease, vasculitis and the like.

In WASOG/JSSOG 2019, we take these crosscuttingly and offer places of exchanges to medical staffs that are beyond the specialized field and present the development to the future.

Participants

Participants include researchers health care professionals; i.e. doctors public health nurses, clinical nurses, basic researchers and pharmacists, public administrators, people in pharmaceutical companies, medical equipment manufactures working on sarcoidosis, other granulomatous disorders and fibrotic organ impairments. These contributors will come from worldwide.

About WASOG

The WASOG stands for World Association for Sarcoidosis and Other Granulomatous Disorders. This organization was founded in 1987 by Dr. Geraint James in Milan, Italy, during the World Congress for Sarcoidosis. However, meetings around the world regarding sarcoidosis had been organized by Dr. Geraint James since the 1960s. From the beginning, it was recognized that sarcoidosis came in many forms and affected people in different ways. However, there have been two common features that define the disease: the granuloma and the multi-organ nature of the disease. WASOG is a unique organization. It is not tied down by geographical considerations, such as the European Respiratory Society, Japanese Thoracic Society, or the American Thoracic Society.

Interstitial Lung Diseases

The topics WASOG is focusing on are interstitial lung diseases (ILD) including sarcoidosis. These disorders are mainly part of a larger systemic problem. Thus, in the management of these disorders a multidisciplinary approach is mandatory. WASOG is not limited to just pulmonary physicians, but includes cardiologists, dermatologists, neurologists, infectious disease specialists, hepatologists, geneticists, and hematologists. WASOG has its own experts, journal, society and patients. There is a merger of clinical interest and basic science.

Mission Statement

Our aim is to find a cure for sarcoidosis and other ILD and to improve the quality of life for patients. This can only be done through research and collaboration with our world-wide medical colleagues, pharmaceutical companies, and biotech companies.

Sarcoidosis requires a multidisciplinary approach to research, education and treatment as it is a disease with many different manifestations. It is our goal to inform and educate both patient and physician of the latest diagnostic tools, research, and treatment options. Each patient is unique and requires treatment tailored to his or her specific symptoms.
